

The Walls: I

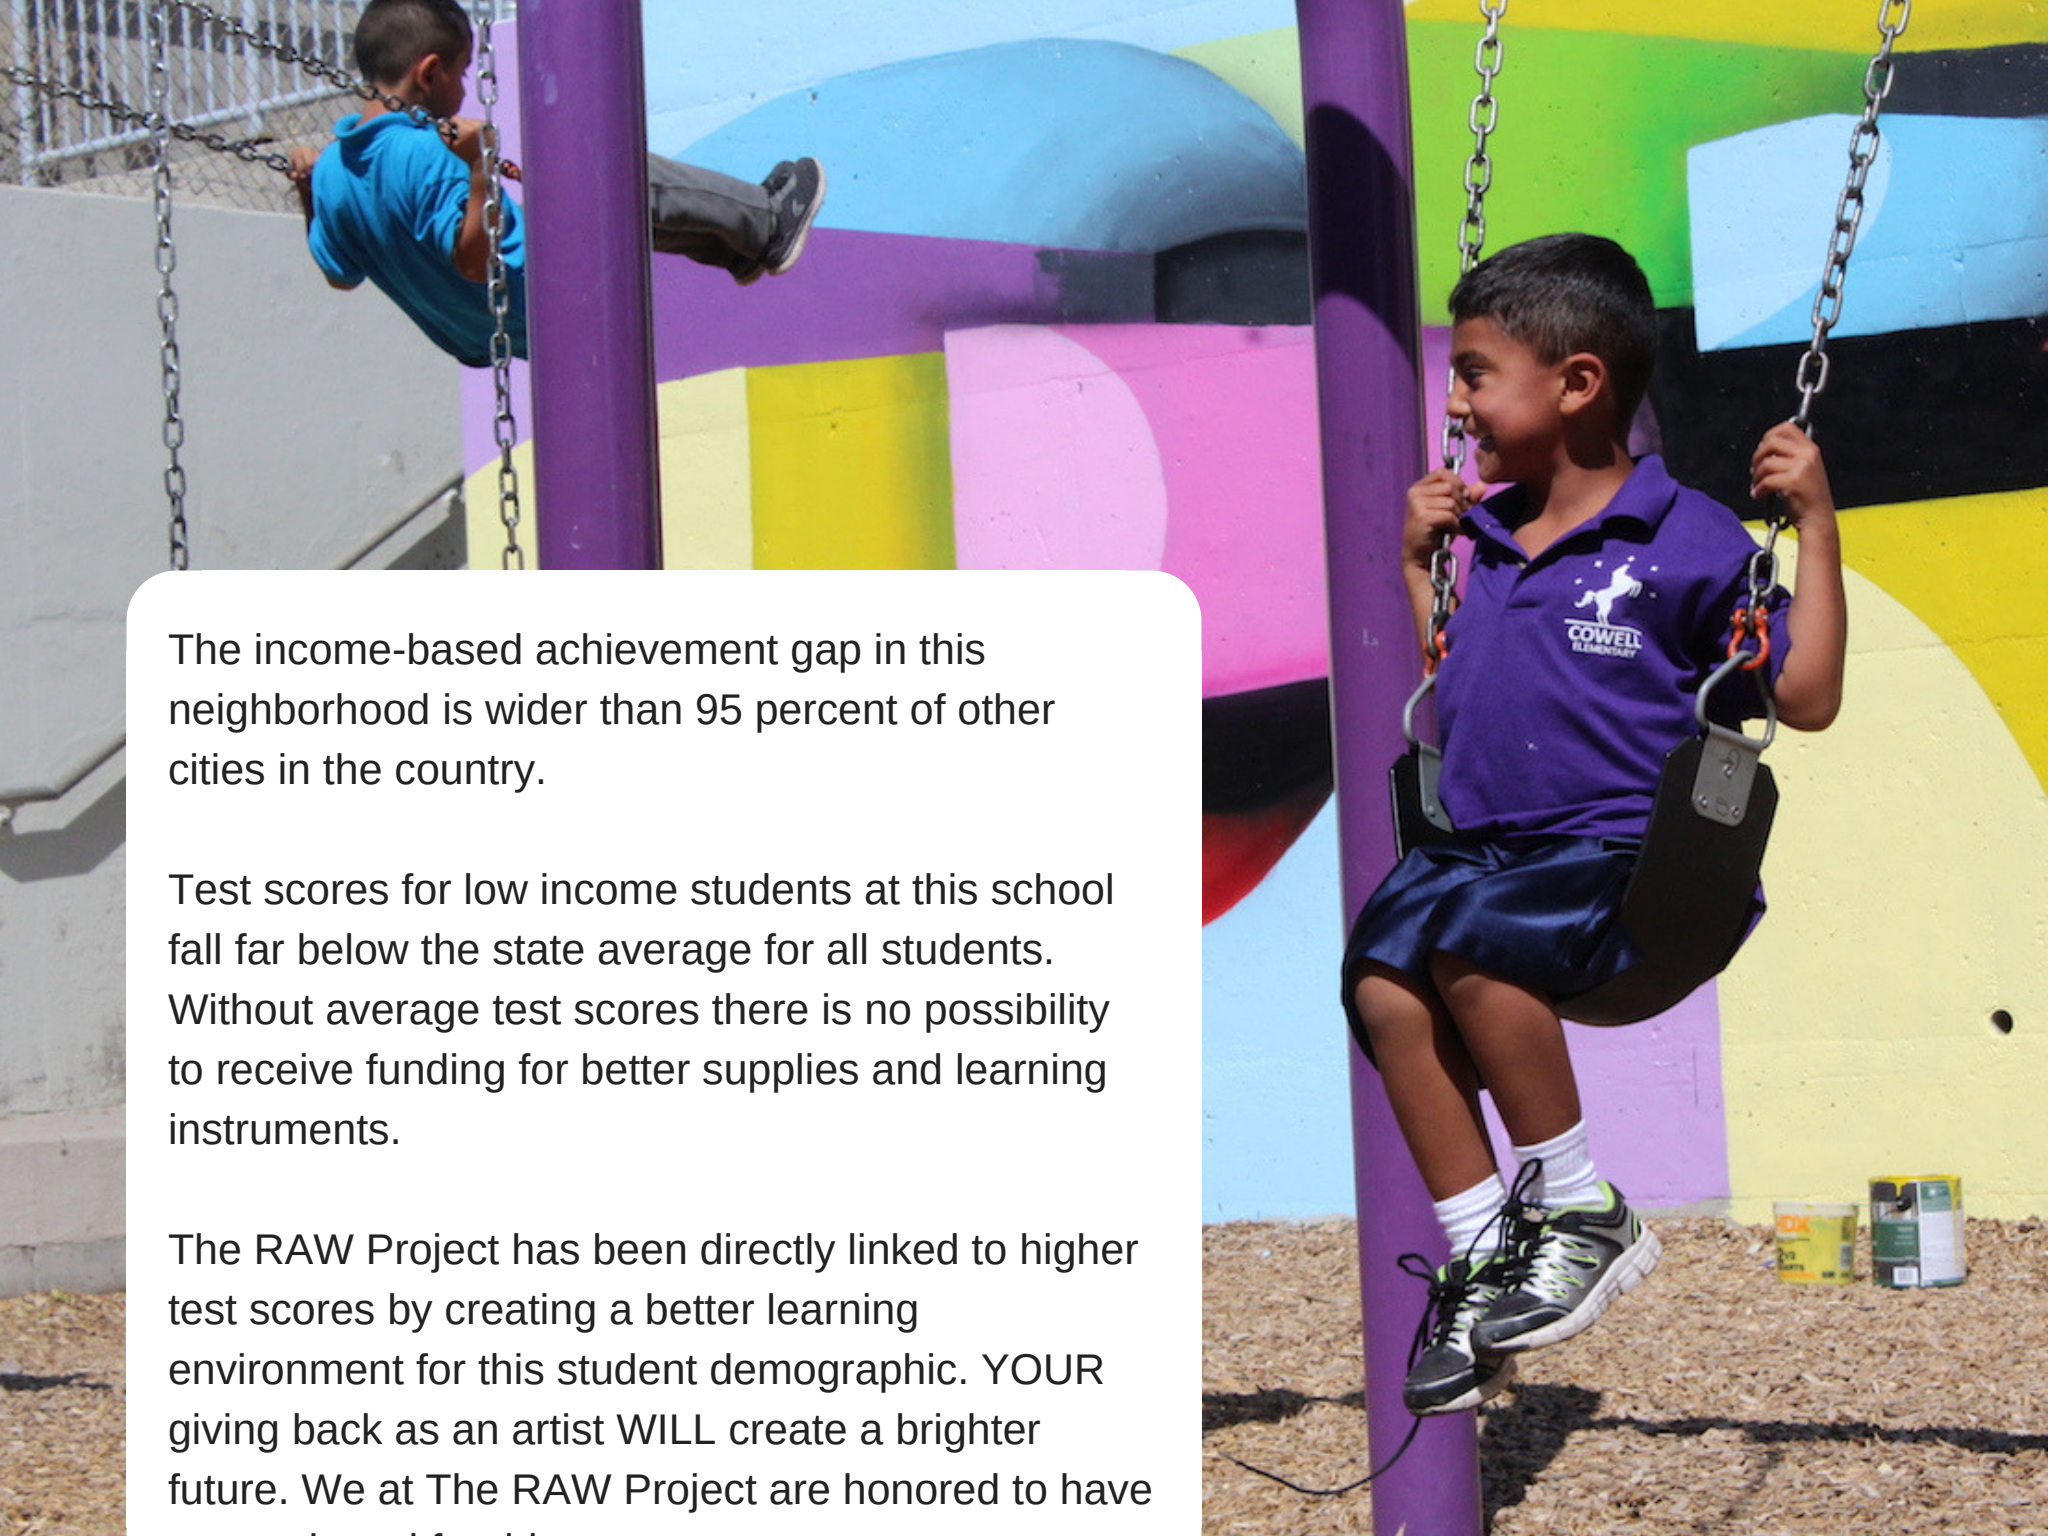

the
RAW
project

School: Montbello Campus

Montbello is a huge campus that houses three middle schools (10-13 year olds) and two high schools (14-18 year olds). This is our largest area yet.

- There are about 2500 students.
- 89% are living below the poverty line.
- 11 % are meeting literacy averages
- Nearly all are from minority backgrounds
- This school faces overcrowded classes
- Test scores in math and science are at about 4% to 8% (the average is 48%)

The income-based achievement gap in this neighborhood is wider than 95 percent of other cities in the country.

Test scores for low income students at this school fall far below the state average for all students. Without average test scores there is no possibility to receive funding for better supplies and learning instruments.

The RAW Project has been directly linked to higher test scores by creating a better learning environment for this student demographic. YOUR giving back as an artist WILL create a brighter future. We at The RAW Project are honored to have
